Introduction
Girikerto is a village with a distinctive landscape on the slopes of Mount Lawu, which has been inactive for quite some time. This village is located in the Sine District, Ngawi Regency, East Java. Its terrain is mountainous with an elevation of ±800 meters, and it receives relatively high rainfall. The majority of the area is in the form of a forest conservation area. Administratively, Girikerto Village is divided into three hamlets and one village, namely Nglegok, Banjaran, Girikerto, and Kampung Jamus. The village, with a population of 2,200 people, occupies 1,097,117 hectares.

The agricultural land covers an area of 62,621 hectares, and 40% of the population in Girikerto are farmers. The remaining land, covering 365 hectares, belongs to Perum Perhutani KPH Lawu Utara, managed jointly with the Village Forest Community Institution (LMDH), and 275 hectares are owned by Girikerto Village in Kampung Jamus. In Kampung Jamus, there is a tea plantation that has been around for thousands of years (since the Dutch colonial era) and is currently managed by PT Candi Loka. Abundant water and green natural scenery with forests, mountains, rural landscapes, and tea plantations integrated into the distinctive landscape of Mount Lawu are among the advantages of Girikerto Village. To support tourism, accommodation facilities in the form of homestays are provided in Girikerto Tourism Village.. (Wikipedia, 2023)...(...
A region can become a tourism area that can be further developed into a tourism village should have specific criteria that characterize the area. (Arida & Pujani, 2017). Girikerto Tourism Village is located in the Sine District, precisely in the upper region of Ngawi Regency, or on the slopes of Mount Lawu. When visiting there, visitors will be treated to the beautiful expanse of tea plantations and the majestic presence of Mount Lawu.

There is a privately-owned Jamus Tea Plantation that sells nature. In addition to purchasing tea products, there is a water source that serves as a tourist attraction for swimming pools. "Their tea production is quite extensive," said Totok. Tourists visiting Girikerto Tourism Village can not only enjoy the cool air in the tea plantations but also pick tea directly from the garden and bring tea products as souvenirs. The presence of many tourist attractions in an area is a significant potential for homestay development. (Suwintari et al., 2023).
The attraction of tourist destinations and the influx of tourists visiting Girikerto Tourism Village provide a unique opportunity for the community to supplement their income. This opportunity arises alongside their farming activities by utilizing their homes as homestays. (Sagita et al., 2021). Homestay is a type of tourism business that provides facilities in the form of buildings as temporary accommodations, equipped with or without meals and drinks, as well as other services managed commercially or semi-commercially. It is one form of accommodation business. (Rasoolimanesh et al., 2017)

Like previous community service implementers, homestays often do not develop and progress due to their management system being unprofessional and handled as it is. (Karanganyar, 2022). Based on the survey conducted by the implementers, the establishment of homestays is relatively recent and still in the initial stages. Therefore, there is a lack of knowledge and skills since the majority of homestay managers are farmers and laborers trying to improve their economy by pioneering homestay businesses.

To address this issue, the implementation team conducted community service to enhance human resources in knowledge and skills for the development of Homestay facilities in Girikerto Tourism Village, Ngawi Regency, East Java.

This activity took place on November 22–23, 2023, at Girikerto Tourism Village Homestay, with participants consisting of homestay managers and members of the Village Tourism Awareness Group (Pokdarwis) in Girikerto Tourism Village, Ngawi Regency, East Java Province.

In the implementation of this community service activity, the implementing team conducts theory sessions in a dedicated room with the hope of better focus and full concentration, so that the presented material can be absorbed effectively. This activity is continuously evaluated to measure the extent to which participants can know, understand, and comprehend the material so that they can master it, which will later be implemented in their work as competent and professional homestay operators.
